2024 Sponsor, Exhibit, and Marketing Opportunities

APRIL 9–13 | CLEVELAND, OHIO, USA

International Congress on Integrative Medicine & Health
The most comprehensive scientific congress in the field of integrative medicine.
On April 10–13, 2024, the Academic Consortium for Integrative Medicine & Health will host the 8th Annual International Congress on Integrative Medicine and Health in Cleveland, Ohio USA.

Sponsor support is essential to ensuring the International Congress on Integrative Medicine & Health provides the educational, scientific, and community experience to amplify and advance health care that embraces and empowers every person. That support enables a high-caliber experience and increases access by providing scholarships to young and early-career researchers, covering operational costs and subsidizing registration fees to make the International Congress more affordable for professionals who otherwise will not be able to attend. Custom packages can be developed as long as they are in-line with ACCME guidelines. We welcome sponsors who support integrative health activities and can help our attendees in their efforts to champion whole health approaches.

Due to continuing medical education requirements, supporter opportunities have been developed for non-commercial and commercial entities. The ACCME definition of a commercial interest can be found here. Commercial supporters and exhibits may be required to sign a commercial support agreement from our CME provider.

Educational grants are handled separately. Supporters wishing to provide an educational grant should contact staff at the Academic Consortium for Integrative Medicine and Health at info@imconsortium.org.

Scientists, educators, practitioners, administrators, students and policy-makers from the domestic and international communities will gather to highlight scientific advances pertaining to the field of integrative medicine and whole health. The International Congress will highlight progress in the arenas of original research, educational innovations, clinical delivery models and policy innovations. Abstracts, symposia, panel discussions, workshops and plenary sessions are solicited from the community and selection is based on peer review for quality, timeliness and fit with the overall program. The International Congress will convey the latest information on (a) safety, efficacy, mechanism of action and cost effectiveness of individual therapies and lifestyle interventions, and (b) models of integrative care which are emerging in the US and abroad. Nearly 1,000 researchers, educators, clinicians, administrators and students/trainees from around the world are expected to attend. The International Congress organizers welcome individuals from all disciplines and professions engaged in integrative medicine and health to foster the development of new collaborations and to strengthen existing partnerships within the field of whole health.

Health care transformation requires a collaborative community working together to advance the wellness of all. Our sponsors and exhibitors mutually benefit from supporting the International Congress. We welcome the opportunity to provide International Congress attendees with meaningful information about organizations and products that will help them innovate in research, clinical practice, education and advocacy. Thank you for your partnership.
